Farmers Vote in Favor of Cotton Marketing Quota

Only 23 of 3,740 Votes in County Oppose New Program

IS GIVEN BIG MARGIN

Compulsory Measure Carries Dixie by Nearly 90 Per Cent

Farmers in Hempstead county voted in favor of the marketing quotas on Saturday, March 12. A total of 3,740 votes were cast at 16 voting places of which 3,709 voted yes or in favor of the marketing quotas, and 23 voted no or against. Eight votes were challenged.

According to reports from the Washington office, marketing quotas carried well above 90 per cent. This means compulsory cotton production for 1938. Every farmer who expects to grow cotton in Hempstead county in 1938 will be allotted a cotton acreage.

Producers who did not sign a work sheet in 1937, and who have not called at the county agent's office in the past few days and signed one, should do this immediately.

Work sheets will probably not be accepted after the 15th or 16th of this month, due to the fact that all the work sheets must be signed before any producers in the county can be allotted an acreage of cotton.

Following is a list of places at which votes were cast, showing how the producers voted:

Clarence Darrow, Lawyer, Is Dead

Famed Champion of the "Underdog" Dies at Age of 80

CHICAGO, (AP)—Clarence Darrow, champion of the "underdog" and bitter foe of capital punishment, who won international fame as a defense attorney, is dead.

The 80-year-old lawyer who once wrote, "I've fought all my life for the underdog" succumbed at his home at 12-49 p. m. Sunday after a long illness. Heart failure was given as the immediate cause of his demise.

Criminal Attorney
The master pleader for the defense in a long list of criminal cases including that of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, the "thrill slayers" of little Bobby Franks in Chicago more than a decade ago, had been confined to his bed for the past two months.

Mrs. Darrow, who had been in constant attendance at her husband's bedside, his son, Paul, and Darrow's sister, Mrs. Jennie Darrow Moore, were with him when he died.

Funeral arrangements were held in abeyance pending a conference by members of the family, said Judge William H. Hoffa, a close friend, who announced Darrow's death.

The defender of the late Eugene V. Debs, socialist leader, who had been accused of conspiracy during the American railway strike in 1934; or John T. Scopes, defendant in the famous Tennessee "monkey trial" and of many others whom Darrow considered as "underdogs" has been in retirement for five years, but he never lost his interest in world affairs nor in the cause of the "underdog."

Pleads Guilty to Theft

NEW YORK—(AP)—Richard Whitney, head of a Wall Street brokerage firm and former president of the New York stock exchange, pleaded guilty Monday to a grand jury indictment charging grand larceny.

The financier is accused of theft of $162,000 from the estate of his father-in-law, George R. Sheldon.

Case to Federal Court
LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Attorneys for Lester Brockhurst, condemned to die next Friday for the death of Victor Gates, Little Rock landowner, said Monday they would take his case into federal court Tuesday at Helena.

Brockhurst's counsel announced the appeal would be based on a contention that prejudicial influences surrounded Brockhurst's trial last June at Lenoire, and that he is now mentally irresponsible.

Mrs. W. T. Z. Powell Is Buried Sunday

Services for Aged Hempstead Woman Held at Rocky Mount

Funeral services for Mrs. W. T. Z. Powell, 80, who died late Saturday afternoon at her home in the Rocky Mount community after a brief illness, were held at 3 p. m. Sunday at the family residence.

The services were in charge of the Rev. Mr. Silvey and the Rev. Mr. Farham. Burial was in Rocky Mount cemetery.

Georgia born, Mrs. Powell came to south-west Arkansas during early childhood, first settling in Nevada county. She moved to Hempstead county approximately 35 years ago.

Surviving are five sons, J. L. Powell of Hope, Arthur of Rocky Mount, Charles of Little Rock, Wylie and Monroe of Jacksonville, Fla., one daughter, Mrs. J. E. Browning of Rocky Mount, one brother, J. M. Ferguson of Stuttgart, and one sister, Mrs. Ada Bruckman of Stuttgart.

Red Cross Camp Is Abandoned Monday

232 Families Given Assistance During Recent Red River Flood

Red Cross Chairman Wayne H. England said Monday that the Red Cross flood refugee camp on highway 67 near Fulton would be completely evacuated by nightfall. Many of the flood sufferers returned to their homes in the lowlands last week.

England said 232 families were given assistance during the recent Red River flood that inundated thousands of acres of lowland property in the Fulton area.

The assistance included food, clothing, shelter, bedding, house furnishings and medical attention.

England said a total of 4,500 meals were served during the flood. The total cost through Friday of last week amounted to $2,952.86.

England expressed his appreciation to all persons who aided flood refugees.

MIND Your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Is it a good idea to add a postscript to a business letter?

2. Is it correct to write "Thank you for" at the close of a letter where thanks are due?

3. In a long business letter, should the length of the sentences be varied?

4. Should a married woman's cards be engraved Mrs. Frank Smith or Mrs. Mary Jones Smith?

5. When a girl and boy become engaged, whose parents should make the first gesture of welcome?

What would you do if—

You are a young man attending a picture show with a "date" and wonder what you should do with your hat?

(a) Give it to the girl to hold?

(b) Keep it on your lap?

(c) Put it under the seat, if there is a rack for it?

Answer:

1. No.

2. Yes.

3. Yes. Or it would be inconsiderate to read.

4. Mrs. Frank Smith.

5. The boy's.

Fight Is Planned to Retain Civil Service in State

H. F. Hillebrandt Arrives From Wisconsin to Lend Aid

DISCORD IS GROWING

Resume Deliberations of Special Session Monday Afternoon

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Immediate steps by the American federation of state, municipal and county employees, an AFL affiliate, to join state civil service proponents in the fight to retain systems in Arkansas loomed Monday.

H. F. Hillebrandt, general representative of the federation, arrived in Little Rock from Madison, Wis., headquarters, at what he said was a request of "local interests."

He said the course of action for federation members in Little Rock to retain the civil service appropriation had not been decided upon.

Investigations Ahead
Notes of discord grew louder as legislators returned to the capitol city from their homes to resume deliberations Monday at the special session.

Reports gained circulation that resolutions to be introduced in both houses would ask an investigation of financial affairs of the state welfare department. Other sources said an inquiry into highways department management was probable.

Drawn up for introduction in the house, probably Monday, was a resolution asking Revenue Commissioner Z. M. McCarroll for an accounting in connection with a secret fund furnished him by wholesale liquor dealers for enforcement work. The senate made a similar request last week-end. McCarroll said he would submit the data.

Civil service continued to furnish the principal topic of conversation in hotel lobbies following the house's action in voting to stifle the merit system. The house voted to give the civil service maintenance appropriation to the state sanatorium building fund.

Bills Called Monday
The sanatorium bill is on the house program for Monday with most legislators predicting passage by nightfall. This would send the measure, and the amendment attached to its affecting civil service, to the senate.

Several who fought for the "amendment to kill civil service" in the house predicted that the senate would strip from the sanatorium measure all mention of civil service. Tackett of Pike, author of the amendment, said "I doubt that the senate will agree to the amendment."

The senate upon reconvening will have an unfinished business before it but a special refunding committee of 12 will meet Monday night to consider the administration's highway bills, the basis for the special session call.

Wants Sanatorium
A dozen legislators, meeting at Jonesboro Sunday, endorsed a proposal for establishing a branch of the state sanatorium there through purchase of the Jonesboro Baptist College which has not operated for three years.

Senator Lucien Coleman of LeFlore and Representative Nabors Shaw of Marked Tree said Representative Horton, Jonesboro, had drafted a bill for presentation Monday calling for the state to purchase the college buildings.

Shaw estimated the purchase could be completed for about $50,000 and that an additional $200,000 would be needed to put the plant in operation. Tentative plans call for a sanatorium unit there to accommodate 250 patients.

Physicians in Northeast Arkansas have endorsed the proposal, the legislators said. Funds would be derived under a sanatorium appropriation bill sponsored by Nichols of Logan and Nyberg of Phillips. This provides a $1,500,000 appropriation.

D. Roy Roberts, Fayetteville, president of the Arkansas Education Association, called a meeting of the executive legislative and educational commissions to protect any diversion of school funds by the legislature.

Suicidal Verdict Is Returned in Death of Ed Eaglin

MAGNOLIA, Ark.—(AP)—Ed Eaglin, about 65, was found shot to death near here late Sunday. Coroner Fred Lewis returned a verdict of suicide. A letter found in Eaglin's clothing attributed the act to bad health. He had been living with a nephew, Minor Anderson, just outside the city.

What Hitler Gets in Austria

Only a tiny little country is Austria—only a little larger than our own state of Maine—yet it is a rich prize to stake the ambitions of Adolf Hitler and his Nazis.

In addition to the fact that Austria is rich in minerals and agricultural products, its domination by Germany was a supreme triumph for Hitler in his campaign to project Nazi principles throughout central Europe.

No wonder, then, that Italy's Benito Mussolini watches the Austrian scene so closely in the animated map above, drawn by NEA artist George Scarbo.

He doesn't like to contemplate a Nazi-dominated Austria just across the Alps from his domain.

Hitler is enraptured as he sends his goose-stepping troops into Austria to complete the subjugation which reaches its climax when Chancellor Schuschnigg resigns. Swastikas fly over every city.

What does Hitler get by taking over Austria? About 32,300 square miles of land . . . populated by 6,768,000 persons . . . of whom 6,116,000 are Catholics . . . 285,452 are Protestants . . . the rest Jews . . . whose principal occupation is agriculture . . . growing 1,000,000 acres of rye, 700,000 of oats, 500,000 of wheat, 400,000 of barley . . . and who produce much timber, minerals and other natural resources . . . and manufacture machinery, automobiles, textiles, leather goods, furniture and paper.

As Nazi Riots Turned to Thunderous Celebration

When Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg finally capitulated before the iron-fisted ultimatum of Hitler, Nazis who previously had been rioting burst into a wild celebration such as pictured in the striking radiophoto above. Mounted police found their job almost as difficult as during the earlier street clashes, so riotous were the demonstrations of the victorious Nazis. Similar scenes were enacted all over Austria.

Toll Bridge Bill to Be Introduced

Miller County Representative Would Free Index Bridge

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Rep. Otto Forehand of Miller county said he would introduce a bill in the legislature Monday to remove tolls from the Index bridge over highway 71 between Ashdown and Texarkana.

Governor Bailey's special legislative program calls for removal of tolls on all state owned bridges in the state. He also has proposed the appropriation of approximately $135,000 to purchase and free of tolls such as Powhatan and Des Arc.

Attorney General Jack Holt several weeks ago filed suit in Little River county chancery court to enjoin the Index bridge district from collecting tolls. He charged the district had $29,467.08 on deposit to meet outstanding

Dick Huie Enters Prosecutor's Race

Arkadelphia Man Promises Strict Enforcement of All Laws

Dick Huie, Arkadelphia, Clark county attorney, today gave Hope Star his formal announcement for the office of prosecuting attorney of the Eighth Judicial district, which is composed of the counties of Hempstead, Nevada, Clark, Miller and Lafayette, subject to the action of the Democratic primary in August.

Mr. Huie is a native of Clark county, having been born and reared in Arkadelphia. He is the son of R. W. Huie, also an attorney, with whom he is associated, and the grandson of R. W. Huie, former lumberman of South Arkansas. He has no opponents at the present time.

Mr. Huie attended high school at Arkadelphia, and Henderson college. He received his legal education at the University of Arkansas.

In 1933 he represented Clark county in the Arkansas legislature, as representative. He entered the race for prosecuting attorney in 1934, and was defeated by a small margin. He did not run against the incumbent for his second term.

Mr. Huie is well known among the

Will Match Force of German Armies Says Chamberlain

Vital Statement Is Given in Reply to Austrian Invasion

HITLER IN AUSTRIA

France Seeks Agreement With Britain, Italy and Russia

By the Associated Press
Prime Minister Chamberlain Monday plainly warned Germany that Britain would expand her vast rearmament program to match force for force in answer to Hitler's absorption of Austria.

The prime minister, in a vital statement of policy before the House of Commons, did not promise British backing to France if that country should go to war to save Czechoslovakia from pan-Germanism.

Chamberlain bluntly rejected a German statement that Britain had no right to interest herself in Austrian independence.

Adolf Hitler entered the capital of bloodlessly-absorbed Austria Monday. Hysteria swept Austrian Jewry. Hundreds sought to flee the country without much success. Many were arrested.

France Seeks Agreement
France, with the new People's Front government headed by Leon Blum, sought an understanding with Britain to tolerate no further Nazi expansion.

France planned to expand her mutual assistance arrangements with Czechoslovakia and Russia to include all of central Europe. Britain hoped to bring Italy into the Franco-British front.

Hope of bringing Italy into line rested with moves for a British-Italian agreement, despite new mutual reassurances between Hitler and Mussolini.

A Spanish insurgent offensive which drove unchecked for 45 miles eastward, deep into the Catalonia border region, was gaining promise Monday of a civil war victory for Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The Spanish government troops fell back to the Mediterranean coastal plains.

In China, the Japanese invaders were stalled on all of China's far-flung war fronts.

Jap shock troops which crossed the Yellow river near Chengchow last week and disrupted service over the Lunghai railroad, had been wiped out Monday or either driven back.

Traffic over the vital railroad line has been resumed.

End of Freedom
Austria ceased to be a nation and became part of Adolf Hitler's German Reich, extending from the North Sea almost to the Adriatic. The end of political freedom for ancient Austria was achieved by two legal steps:

First, President Wilhelm Miklas resigned. He had opposed Nazification of his country.

Then, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Hitler-chosen chancellor, took charge of the government under constitutional authority provided for such emergency and announced decrees legislating Austria out of existence.

Anschluss (Union) of Austria to Germany was accomplished at the height of a great wave of Nazi sentiment, vastly stimulated by Hitler's presence on the soil of his native Austria.

The death blow to Austria independence was administered in the historic chancellery where the Congress of Vienna was held in 1814-15 and where in 1934 Engelbert Dollfuss, the little chancellor who fought Nazism, was assassinated.

Austria Now Part of Germany
Absorption of Austria seemed complete but provision was announced for some sort of plebiscite on April 10. The question to be put to the Austrian people was not known, but it was assumed they would be asked merely to approve an accomplished fact. Persons of 20 or older will be permitted to vote.

Austria, it was made clear, will be drawn at once into the German economic structure and articulated to Germany's four-year plan for economic self-sufficiency.

A second announcement said that Hitler had become chief of the merged Austro-German military forces and that Austrian soldiers immediately were to take an oath of loyalty to the Reich and to Hitler.

General policies of the German states were to be taken over into Austria. One significant statement was that Austrian Jews would not be permitted to wear the swastika.

Average production of 340,990 oil wells in the United States is 8.1 barrels a day, the American Petroleum institute reports.

The Legal Profession and Mass Production

THERE has been, in the last year or so, an increasing movement on the part of bar associations throughout the United States to place legal service on a rapid-turnover, low cost basis for those who need it. The aim of this movement is the legal service bureau, an organization run by the bar to operate on a scale of moderate prices and reaching the legal needs of low income groups.

The legal service bureau is sharply distinguished from the legal aid societies which furnish free advice and service to those persons unable to pay even a moderate fee for legal aid.

The movement represents the first step of the legal profession toward mass production, toward standardization of prices and services. The legal service bureau becomes a shop where prices are set in scale and the process of industrialization is applied to the law for the first time.

It's a great break for the people who have long needed legal service at a moderate fee—the laborer, the salaried man and the small business man.

UNDER a plan recently devised and proposed for use, such a bureau would offer service in lines considerably specialized and therefore almost routine for the attorneys handling them. They included draftsmanship of various legal papers (at standard prices obtainable in advance); simple wills, leases, contracts, handling of certain types of disputes, as wage and rent controversies; garnishments, claims for alimony, separate maintenance and support, mortgage foreclosures, insurance claims, accident cases and some criminal trials.

The bureaus, it was pointed out, will handle many classes of cases which are not being handled by lawyers in private practice because the money involved is too small and the legal procedure too complicated—as service required by automobile owners in connection with pretty infractions of the law or damages to property.

Included in the recommendations for the bureau were notations that the organization probably would not be self-supporting the first year or two but thereafter would be entirely so, and there were provisions for branch offices.

The recommendations tacitly hinted that in this legal service bureau young attorneys with crisp, new diplomas could get sorely needed apprenticeship under the supervision of experienced oldsters. It would give them a living and training at the same time.

MANY established attorneys will hold, as counselors have always held, that the relationship of attorney and client is extremely personal and confidential, and that legal industrialization will destroy in the bar that which has always been its greatest attribute.

Carried to its farthest conclusion the legal service bureau might do that, but it seems clear the originators of the plan aim to set a limit to its functions. Lawyers, like all of us, are living in a world that has changed, while the legal profession is one of the slowest to change steps. The bar can progress honorably—without losing one single ideal.

Have A Guess

YOUR guess is as good as the next on the conversational trends when Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler spends a week visiting Premier Benito Mussolini early in May.

They probably will talk about Austria and they undoubtedly will talk about Czechoslovakia, and there may be a dozen developments between now and then that will influence the topics of discussion. Russia undoubtedly will be mentioned, and France, and what each nation is liable to do—well, just in case.

England is likely to be in and out of the conversation, and Anthony Eden and Chamberlain, though just how, no one knows. In fact, any prediction as to what Hitler and Mussolini will do when they get together for a week's tete-a-tete along the Rome-Berlin axis is too dependent on what happens by that time to be predictable.

But there is one thing you can bet on. This is practically certain. They aren't getting together to elect a queen of the May.

Only One Safe Way of Removing Hair Permanently; Some Means Dangerous

(No. 473)

Following a recent discussion of hair, in these columns, so many people wrote inquiring as to the removal of superfluous hair from various portions of the body that this would seem to be a fairly common complaint. Not only women were concerned about extra hair, but men also.

Many people seem to worry because they have been told that greasing of the skin with various creams, shaving of the hair on various portions of the body and similar procedures will produce excessive growth of hair.

As far as can reasonably be determined from a great number of observations and experiments, there is no reason to believe that either the use of ordinary cold cream in the usual manner, or the repeated shaving of the hair on various portions of the body will be followed by excessive growth.

For the removal of excessive hair six different methods are usually considered. Shaving is usually harmless but, of course, has to be repeated frequently when the growth of hair is strong. If the hair is coarse and thick, the presence of the hair will be visible on the skin unless the skin is suitably treated with cream or powder.

Again it should be emphasized, however, that shaving will not cause the hair to grow more rapidly nor will it make the hair grow coarser. It is possible to pull the hair out with tweezers. When there are only a few hairs this can be done and it is usually five or six weeks before a new hair develops. This must be done frequently, however. Frequent pulling of the hair with tweezers may set up an inflammation or irritation of the skin and if the hairs happen to grow out of moles such irritations may be serious.

The hair may be rubbed away with various preparations containing pumice or grinding materials. Various wax preparations may be put on the skin and allowed to harden. When these are suddenly pulled off, the hair comes with them. The effect of this is frequently an irritation. A similar criticism applies to the use of various powders and creams which are supposed to burn off the hair, making what is called a chemical shave.

In many places there are now institutes which claim to remove superfluous hair safely by the use of the X-ray. There are, however, already a sufficient number of cases recorded of serious damage to the skin by this method.

The one certain method of removing hair safely is the so-called electrolytic destruction. This method properly performed is safe; the scarring is negligible and when the work is done by a skilled person, the results are permanent. A skilled operator is necessary and it is frequently most expensive. Only six to 12 or 15 hairs can be removed each time.

DEREK MANTHORN—an artist who loved money first.
HILDEGARDE THORVALD—Derek's painted her portrait.
DR. ROBERTS—he met his most difficult case.

Yesterday, so Derek says a hurried goodbye and Constance left alone in his studio—to think things over. The door rattled.

CHAPTER IV

BUT it wasn't Derek at the door. It was a young man for the pictures Derek was leaving with Louis Paul, a local art dealer.

Constance had often met the young man when she had gone with Derek to the Paul gallery.

"I hear you're going to California for the honeymoon," he offered as he handed Constance the receipt for the paintings. "Rather sudden, isn't it?"

"Rather," Constance smiled brightly and watched him carry the canvases out of the studio.

It was hard to sit quietly waiting while the clock on the mantelpiece ticked off the precious seconds. To Constance, the passing of each minute was like the loss of a precious pearl.

"I mustn't go on like this," Constance thought. "I must be waiting, quiet and reasonable when he comes. Because he's got to come back. His bags are still here."

When, at last, quick purposeful steps sounded in the corridor outside, Constance stood up, her hands pressed against her throat to stifle her sob of relief. Only five or ten minutes, perhaps, for all the things left unsaid; but it would be something.

THE door opened, and Constance's hands dropped limply to her sides. A uniformed chauffeur stood in the doorway, cap in hand.

"Miss Maidwell?" he asked; and when Constance only nodded silently, he went on, "Mr. Thorvald sent me for Mr. Manthorn's bags, Miss. The time was getting short; so Mr. and Miss Thorvald and Mr. Manthorn have gone ahead in another car. But Miss Thorvald asked me to say, if you were still here, that if you wish to come to the airport to see them off, I am to drive you out and bring you home later."

"Please thank Miss Thorvald—"

Constance was amazed to hear her own voice, clear and steady in spite of the tears that clutched at her throat. "Tell her that I appreciate her courtesy, but that I have an engagement. . . Oh, yes—and wish them all a pleasant flight for me."

When he had gone, she locked the door and flung herself face down on the couch, sobbing out her despair at the desolation her perverse anger had wrought for her. She had meant to be so reasonable and adult, and she had behaved like a spoiled brat, cutting off her own nose to spite her face.

She had lain for a half hour or so when the telephone rang shrilly beside her. Constance had only to reach to a table at her elbow to pick up the receiver.

"The County Airport, is calling Miss Constance Maidwell," a voice said.

"This is Miss Maidwell," Constance choked.

"Just a minute, Miss Maidwell. Here's your party, sir," the voice said again.

Then Derek spoke, hurriedly, in lowered tones: "Darling, you did wait! I felt sure you would."

Constance swallowed twice and said, "Of course, Derek. . . Of course I waited."

"It's all been utterly incredible," Derek rushed on. "Constance, I don't seem possible that I have to go without seeing you again. I—you are there, aren't you, darling?"

"Yes," Constance breathed. "Yes, Derek, I'm here."

"What must you have been thinking all this time? But it's amazing how many things turned up that we simply had to attend to. . . You do understand, don't you?"

"Yes of course," Constance said. "Of course I understand." That sounded reasonable. She must send him off happy and pleased with her.

"I can't begin to explain now. We're taking off in a minute. But I'll be sending for you in a week or so. And in the meantime, I want you to take a real vacation, Connie. I remember you told me you had saved a good deal; but if you need money, you must promise to let me know at once."

Yes, Miss Thorvald, I'm coming at once. . . It's a promise, then? You're to—oh, damn! Over the wire came the roar of a powerful motor. "Goodbye, darling!"

THE receiver clicked and went dead.

Constance stood for a moment staring into the silent instrument. Then she laughed a little wildly. A good rest!

She had just remembered the long ten-dollar bill in her bag at home—the bag she was to have carried on her honeymoon.

Alone in her own rooms that afternoon, Constance was compelled to give some serious thought to the problem presented by that lone ten-dollar bill.

The rent for her apartment was paid until the end of the month. She was not, she reflected with faint irony, likely to be in serious need of clothes for some time. But there was the question of food, carfare, and laundry. . . Ten dollars would not go far. She must find some work again until—until Derek had arranged something. . . "A week or so," Derek had said.

The logical step, of course, would be to go back to the Museum. She had stayed there, getting her desk ready for her successor till late last week; and when she left, no successor had appeared, not even a possibly eligible candidate. Going back would be a bitter pill after her high-heeled leave-taking, but—

Walking rapidly to get to the Museum before closing time, she framed airy uncommunicative answers to the barrage of friendly banter that she knew would greet her when she asked to be reinstated.

She managed to carry it off with just the light touch she had striven for.

Yes, they had decided to postpone the wedding for a few weeks. Of course the girls had heard about the marvelous opportunity that had come to Derek? . . . Yes, the Hildegarde Thorvald. . . "Jealous? My dear, have you seen her? Who wouldn't be? But of course I'll have to get used to that if Derek will go on painting pretty women. . . Of course I'm going to be lonely with nothing to do but count my new stockings and step-ins. That's why I thought—if you needed someone to fill in for a week or so—"

But when Miss Taft, Constance's superior, and she were alone, Miss Taft said regretfully, "Sorry, Constance. The new girl checks in tomorrow—God help us! . . . Now if you are to be here in a month or six weeks, I expect another vacancy then."

"Thanks just the same," Constance smiled with what she hoped was just the casual indifference of one who, after all, had merely been toying with the idea of going back to work—"After all, I suppose, what I ought to do is to take a few weeks of complete rest as Derek begged me to do. I just thought—if you needed someone one to mark time—"

She thought, Well, I did put on a good act—but what, I'd like to know, am I going to use for money?

ute to courage and root fear.

The boy should have boxing gloves, punching bags and climbing bars, or their equivalents—girls, too. The tot should have swings, slides and seesaws. There is a close affinity between physical courage and moral courage, too. There are people who would stick their heads in a lion's mouth, but cannot face a creditor. Yet there is a tie here that is important.

Short of real danger of broken bones, every child should have something to build up prowess. Once I knew a girl who was afraid of slippery pavements. She dreaded the walk to school and stepped carefully as though she were treading on fresh eggs at a dollar a dozen. That was I.

One day I learned to skate. I didn't learn, not that day, but I became initiated to "stars" and crumpled dignity. I did learn later for fair. But that day stands out in my mind as clearly as if it had happened this morning.

I walked home on Glassy pavements with my head up. I was not afraid of icy streets for the first time in my life, and did not fall once. Moreover, I think that day with the defeat of other unnumbered fears.

When you get used to physical bumps you can take mental bumps, too. In short, you win out over self.

Experience of this sort is a dear teacher, but a good one. Let the little child learn to use his muscles, to think quickly, to rough it a bit. Fear, like the genti may then shrink to pint size and hustle back into his bottle.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

A Story in Time Makes You Wonder.

If you enjoy abstruse and recondite puzzles—especially the kind that leave you wondering just who and where you are—your attention should be directed to a book called "An Experiment With Time," by J. W. Dunne (Macmillan: $2.75).

This book came out some time ago, and is now being reissued in a new and revised edition. Attention seems to have been drawn to it by J. B. Frierley's recent remarks about it; and if you care to struggle with a theory which is about two degrees less hard to follow than the Einstein theory, you will find it an excellent stimulant for the imagination.

Mr. Dunne begins by discussing these queer dreams people sometimes have, in which a coming event is previewed, and that odd feeling we all have, at one time or another, that something which we are doing has been done by us before, somehow.

This leads him into an examination of the nature of time; and his argument grows far too complex for me to accept a summary of it. As nearly as I can gather, he adds not merely a fourth dimension to our world, but a fifth as well—a time-stream which moves within a time-stream, and which makes it possible for the human mind to slip its moorings, now and

NAZIS LOOK TOWARD AFRICA AGAIN

BATTLE of Adolf Hitler for Germany's complete comeback as a world power at last finds expression in a definite demand for return of her former colonies. Der Fuehrer struck the note in his famous Reichstag speech of three hours.

These colonies in question are to be found in far-flung corners of the globe, but chiefly Africa. For mandated by the Versailles treaty to allied powers were the rich areas of German East Africa and German South West Africa and the Cameroons. Great Britain and Belgium hold German East Africa; Germany, South West Africa is included in the Union of South Africa and Cameroons is held jointly by Britain and France.

In addition Britain and France hold Togoland in Africa; New Zealand holds Western Samoa; Australia holds New Guinea and Japan holds the Caroline, Marshall and Mariana Islands. Stamps of the valuable German East Africa territory and South West Africa, both British and pre-war German, are shown here.

Gene Likes Scars and Uneven Features, For He's No Sissy

HOLLYWOOD. — Gene Reynolds' movie career to date has been mostly a series of juvenile impersonations. He has played Hercules, Gomez as a boy, John Bull as a boy, Tyrone Power as a boy, and in "Of Human Hearts" Jimmy Stewart as a boy.

But as a result of the latter role, it looks as though Master Reynolds will have a chance to play himself as a boy. I mean that the studio will find a picture, perhaps "One Young American," in which he'll have the leading part. Already two strong parts are being written for him into two scheduled pictures, "Boys' Town" and "Lord Jeff."

All this special attention is due to the way Gene turned on the histrionics in "Of Human Hearts" and drenched preview audiences in their own tears. For months, since the beginning of production, Director Clarence Brown has been going around telling all the sundry that this Reynolds kid is really something. Originally engaged only for the one film, he now has been given a studio contract.

Gene is No Sissy
He's 14 or 15 years old, but shy about his age because he's small—4 feet, 10 inches, 90 pounds. Gene is no pretty-boy, and glad of it. When I asked about a scar on his forehead he said, "Oh, I got that a long time ago. But I don't mind a little scar, or my irregular features, because I don't want to be a Robert Taylor."

Remembering his studio affiliation, Gene stopped in confusion, then continued: "Taylor is an awful nice man, and very human, but I do think they've been putting him in too many sissy roles. Don't you?" I did.

Without direct reference to the small English gentlemen, Freddie Bartholomew and Ronald Sinclair, Reynolds showed he has been figuring on his particular acting advantages.

"I'm sure," he said, "that the American public would like to see a regular American boy on the screen." Immediately afterward he told of wanting to play the Chinese boy hero of a book he had read, or maybe the Son of Tarzan. Tarzan's son, he explained with authority, was half-American.

"I could do that," Gene explained, "because I am going in for acrobatic then, and range ahead as well as backward."

Now you do not have to be able to follow all of the involved steps in Mr. Dunne's theory to be stirred by some of its implications. For if he should be correct about it all, he has demonstrated the existence of a free will and an immortal soul. And while his book is tough going, it is fascinating stuff for those who are willing to follow it.

Name Chairman for Better Home Drive

Melva Bullington Appointed Chairman for Hempstead County

Miss Melva Bullington has accepted the chairmanship of the Better Homes in America Committee for Hempstead County for the 1938 campaign, which will end in the observance of National Better Homes Week—April 24 to 30.

Better Homes in America, as the name implies, is primarily interested in bringing "better homes" within the reach of all citizens, and to that end is conducting an educational campaign in co-operation with volunteer local committees to bring knowledge of better and more economical forms of house furnishings to the attention of the people of America.

The strength of this movement lies in the fact that it has the co-operation of a number of government agencies, national and local civic organizations, that it is working toward a highly educational end, and that it is wholly non-commercial.

The movement is trying to reach the wage-earners and low-salaried population by well-balanced demonstrations. The campaign stresses not only the best in new housing of moderate cost, but also the remodeling of old houses, the improvement of premises, the refinishing of furniture, the development of home recreation, reading, music, health, child care, and community beautification programs, as well.

The national campaign is carried on through volunteer local committees with experienced civic leaders as chairmen. In the campaign for 1937 the National Office, with headquarters at Purdue University, appointed 5,137 local and county committees, 2,921 committees demonstrated new or remodeled small homes to prove that a good home is within the reach of a family with small income, while 1,951 committees arranged tours to 4,015 homes which had experienced some outstanding improvement.

A total of 8,979 lecture programs and discussion groups were held by several hundred committees on subjects concerning house design, construction, equipment or allied topics. 207,919 contestants took part in small house architecture, essay, poster, clothing, garden and food contests. Last year approximately 2,445,000 families participated in the campaign.

The initiative and responsibility of formulating the Better Homes program rest with the local Better Homes committee, for these groups are best able to plan programs which are suited to the specific needs of the community. The programs they sponsor, together with the Home Information Service which the National Office maintains, are serving as an effective medium for the distribution of much needed and reliable information on housing subjects.

nearly 500 barrels through a half-inch choke. Better flow is expected when the well completely cleans itself out. It will be placed on production in two or three days.

The well blew in ten days ago from a depth of 7651 feet in the Permian lime. It is located approximately midway between the Shuler field in Union county and the McKee No. 1 discovery well in the western part of Columbia (Magnolia) county.

The 9th producer from the Jones sand was completed by the Lion Oil Refining company in the Shuler field Saturday.

The well was the Morgan A-5 in section 18-18-17. Officials declined to estimate production but said it was a "big" well.

The Standard Oil company of Louisiana has made four new locations for tests in the Buckner area according to the secretary of the Dorchest company of Buckner.

The tests and locations are as follows:

No. 2—Crone SE of SW Section 8, Township 16, R. 22.

No. 2—McKee NW of SW Section 8, Township 16, R. 22.

No. 1—Warren NW of NW Section 17, Township 16, R. 22.

The three already reaching toward the pay line were at the following depths the past week: Bodcaw No. 1, 8-16-22, down 7076; Thomas Crone No. 1, drilling at 7171.

The Bodcaw derrick fell the other day and knocked the drill stem down and the bit broke off. Efforts are still being made to loosen it.

Roads have been built in the new locations and pits dug. They are to be started when present tests are completed.

War Manuevers by U. S. Are Opened

105 Fighting Ships to Take Part in Coast War Games

SAN PEDRO, Calif.—(AP)—Secrecy of the strictest order enveloped the navy's preparations for the six weeks' war games as 105 fighting ships of Uncle Sam's fleet made ready for their departure from Pacific coast bases.

The ships will depart some time between Monday and Tuesday for widely scattered secret rendezvous in the Alaska-Hawaii areas. On April 1 they are scheduled to appear in Honolulu.

In the initial phase of fleet problem XIX, the White fleet, led by Vice Admiral William T. Tarrant, will attempt the defense of the Pacific coast against an invading Black fleet, commanded by Admiral Edward C. Kalbfus.

The commander-in-chief of the fleet, Admiral Claude C. Bloch, will serve as chief arbiter of the entire operations. When the games are completed he will reassemble the forces in an attempted capture of the island of Oahu, great mid-Pacific stronghold that is to be defended by Rear Admiral Orin G. Murfin's forces. Admiral Murfin's defenders will be composed of both fleet units and the regular defense forces of Hawaii.

Altogether, more than 160 surface craft, 500 airplanes and seaplanes, 3600 officers and 55,000 men will participate in the war games, which will be the nearest to war's realism in the navy's history.

Former Independence Legislator Is Dead

BATESVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—J. Matheny, 65, who served four terms in the legislature from Independence county, was found dead in bed Sunday afternoon. He is believed to have died from strangulation. No inquest will be held. Coroner H. V. Williams said.

Jess Crosser, a friend, made the discovery when he went to visit Matheny. He had been dead about an hour, physicians said.

It was believed he became stricken suddenly while eating a lunch he had prepared himself. Only a few bites of the food had been eaten. He did not complain of feeling ill Sunday morning, neighbors said. His wife, an enrolling clerk in the present session of the legislature, was visiting friends in Stuttgart over the week-end.

Besides his wife he is survived by a step-daughter, Mrs. Ruthell Gossett of Tulsa, Okla., and a brother, Harmon Matheny of Maxville.

Woman, Shot in Head
Found in Bodcaw Creek

LEWISVILLE, Ark.—Sheriff O. S. Griffin reported here that the body of an unidentified negro woman had been found in Bodcaw creek, approximately 14 miles south of here Sunday afternoon.

Griffin said that the woman had been shot through the head and apparently thrown of a bridge into the creek and that the body had drifted one-quarter of a mile down the creek to the point where it was discovered. The sheriff estimated that the woman had been dead several weeks.

She was described as being about 35 years of age, had one gold tooth in the upper left side of the mouth and one tooth missing opposite the gold one. Griffin stated that when found, the woman had on a pair of tan shoes with extra long tongues.

CLUB NOTES

Hinton
Hinton Home Demonstration club held their regular meeting March 8, in the home of Mrs. George Ellidge. The president proceeded with regular order of business. Our club woman's creed was read in unison. The group singing led by Mrs. Berlin Jones. Devotional was the 13th chapter of 1 Cor., read by Mrs. Berlin Simmons. Prayer by Mrs. Adams. Twelve members answered roll call with one visitor. Minutes were read and approved.

Miss Bullington being absent we had no demonstration. All ladies gave interesting comments along their line of work including a report on taxation and school problems of Arkansas. As new business a motion was made and carried that our club collect a chest of sick room necessities to be used in our community whenever needed. Anyone wishing to contribute to this chest will be welcome to do so.

The auction sale raised money for year books was a real success. Our money is ready.

After the sale the hostess served cake and hot chocolate. Were dismissed by repeating the Lord's prayer in unison. Our next meeting will be held at the club house.

Shillings are in constant demand in England. There are 1,090,000 coin in meters in greater London alone, and these may hold as many as 30 shillings each before they are emptied once every two months.

Champions Whip Little Rock Team 42-32 in Final Game

JONESBORO, Ark.—(AP)—Jonesboro retained its state high school basketball championship Saturday night by trouncing Little Rock, 42-32, in the finals of the annual tournament. It was the second straight year the two teams had met in the championship game.

It was a nip and tuck battle for three quarters but the pace was too much for Little Rock as the Hurricane turned loose with a scoring spree in the final stanza.

The count at the end of the initial period found the capital city boys out in front 10-7 but Jonesboro deadlocked the score at 17-all before intermission.

As the bell sounded for the end of the third quarter, Johnny Osment looped a field goal to put Jonesboro ahead for their largest lead in the game to that period of play.

With the beginning of the final period, Pharis and J. Osment hit the wicket to add to the defending champions' lead. Little Rock scored but Jonesboro went on another six-point scoring spree which put the game away.

Howard Hughes of Little Rock captured high scoring honors with 16 points. Barringer paced the victors with 13.

All-state high school basketball teams announced Saturday night at the conclusion of the annual state tournament follows:

First team:

Howard Hughes (Little Rock); Milton Pharis (Jonesboro); F. Myril Hall (Little Rock); C. Guy Boyd (Pine Bluff); G. Johnny Osment (Jonesboro); G.

Second team:

Tilley (Jonesboro); F. Barringer (Jonesboro); F. Carpenter (Ash Flat); C. Nichols (Warren); G. Adams (Beebe); G.

Southern Association Umpires Are Announced

ATLANTA.—(AP)—Major Trammel Scott, president of the Southern Association, announced over the week-end the list of umpires who will work the league games this season. The only change was the elevation of P. H. Blackard of Nashville to a regular job, succeeding Eddie Ainsmith, who went to the International League.

Hadley Williams, of Nashville; Robert Kober, St. Louis; Harry (Steamboat) Johnson and H. T. Campbell, both of Memphis; George Grant, Marberry, Ala.; Cloud Bond, Atlanta; and Polly McLarry, Leonard, Texas.

Reporter Believes Rowe Is Through

Arm of Detroit Pitcher Is Giving Him Trouble Again

By PAUL MICKELSON

LAKELAND, Fla.—(AP)—Schoolboy Rowe has his bobber up and his heart set on a pitching comeback with the Detroit Tigers that will crash the New York Yankees from their pinnacle of baseball greatness but the tragedy of an ailing arm still plagues him.

What's the use of fooling the public? The big fellow who pitched the Detroit Tigers to two straight pennants, holds the answer to the Tiger pennant. But he himself swears "No." At the age of 26, the beginning of a baseball star's prime of life, the Schoolboy is as washed up as Cy Young or old Pete Alexander. His is one of the greatest tragedies in all baseball history. The Schoolboy is a grander man than

Gehrig Agrees to Play for $39,000

Yankee First Baseman Originally Asked for $41,000

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP)—Lou Gehrig will have to wait at least another year to realize his ambition of drawing down $41,000 for playing baseball with the New York Yankees.

The "iron man" first baseman agreed to play this year for $39,000, the terms offered him by Owner Jacob Ruppert. Manager Joe McCarthy announced the glad tidings after word from the Yanks' New York office.

While failing to get the salary he desired, Lurupin Lou has the satisfaction of knowing he is the second highest player in Yankee history. Only Babe Ruth, who got as much as $80,000 during his heyday, has ever taken more out of the colonel's pocket in one year.

There was no bonus for signing. Last year, when Lou accepted $36,000, the colonel made him a present of $750 for coming to terms.

Retains Optimism

over this March as he labors to come back. Instead of the hopeless pessimist he once was, he is smiling through. He knows that futility of his hopes as well as Mickey Cochrane or Trainer Denny Carroll. He even tries to conceal his true condition from manager, trainer and himself but the seemingly inevitable is there. His arm pains him after a short workout and the walnut size knot in his shoulder refuses to let him break loose with his once magnificent sweeping pitches that made him one of the greatest pitchers of them all. "I throw until I feel my arm is getting sore again and then I quit," explains Rowe as those who have been with him through baseball greatness and despair listen and want to cry, "I feel great, great all over but that knot in my arm still bothers me. But I know I'll go away after a few more workouts and then I'll be all set." Trainer Carroll, the man who predicted the tragedy three years before it happened, nods encouragingly assent but he knows though he, like everyone else, hopes he's wrong.

Oscar Vitt Says Gordon Will Make New York Forget Tony Lazzeri

Col. Ruppert's Chiefs See Another Ruth in Keller Who Topped the International League in First Year

Fifth of six stories on the New York Yankee organization, baseball's greatest machine.

By HARRY GRAYSON

Sports Editor, NEA Service

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Babe Ruth was a whole of a man, but the New York Yankees have a whole of an orphaned old home run king.

They said there never would be another Ruth, but DiMaggio quickly did a great job of making the Yankees forget the Bambino.

Tony Lazzeri has been the key player of infielders that have swept the Yankees to five world championships and six American League pennants in 12 years. The Yanks never finished worse than third with Lazzeri always in the right spot in the second basing area, steady pitching, and deploying his teammates. They ran second five times.

They said the club wouldn't be the same when Lazzeri stepped down, but the sad signor has shuttled to the Chicago Cubs, as coach or something, and the Yankee management's confidence in Joe Gordon would be startling even if Bill Knickerbocker wasn't around as a backstop for the young Oregonian.

Keller Hits 353 in Initial Season

In his teens, Gordon played first violin in a symphony orchestra. Next winter Joe plans to wed Dorothy Crum, whom he met at Oregon three years ago. A world series cut would enable him to pay off the mortgage on a house he purchased for his mother last year. And during the next off-season he would like to land the degree of Bachelor of Science in physical education at Oregon.

Gordon was born in Los Angeles, but played high school baseball and football at a Portland high school, and now calls that city his home. A Yankee prospect is advised to quit playing baseball professionally when representatives of the organization see that he never will be of championship class. But from the outset there was no chance of Charley Keller being told to return home and get his mind on something else.

In his first year in professional ball, Charley Keller led International League hitters with a mark of 353. Keller, a product of the University of Maryland, hits just about as long a ball as you've seen. He was the first Gordon, who was 23 years old on February 13, is a pleasant chap who can laugh at himself. He stands 5 feet 11 inches, and weighs 175 pounds. It was just two years ago that the rangy Gordon left the University of Oregon to join the Yankee organization. He reported to the Oakland club, with which the Yanks had a working arrangement.

The intention was to ship Gordon to the Class A Binghamton array, but when one Eddie Leishman's arm failed to come around at shortstop, the Leishman boy fastened a stranglehold on the opportunity. He turned out to be a first-class extra-base hitter in finishing one of the hottest coast yacs in years with an even 300.

Gordon's advancement was remarkable when he was switched to second base last season. Vitt insists that he'll make plays now on balls that Lazzeri would not have reached at his peak.

Fine wrist action enables Gordon, a right-hand hitter, to swat a long ball. He batted .280 in leading off for Newark. Vitt predicts that he will bat .260 for the Yanks, which would be good enough for a defensive player of his caliber.

New Ruth Remains in Newark for Seasoning

"Keller would be a wow in Fenway Park, Boston, with its short left field fence," explains Vitt, "and will be a definite home run threat when he learns to pull the ball."

It was his inability to pull the ball that limited Keller to 14 home runs last season, but Vitt predicts that he'll swat 25 in 1939 which should be his first year with the Yankees, and 45 the following season.

Keller is strong and exceptionally fast for a boy scaling 186 pounds. He beats out infield hits and can drag a ball and punt.

Vitt asserts that his only weakness is getting the ball away too slowly in the outfield, and he shouldn't have too much trouble correcting that. Advised to remain in Newark another season, Keller readily consented. But he definitely appears to be another of those robust replacements who keep the Yankees coming.

Travelers Begin Spring Training

Batterymen Report Monday, Infielders to Start Work Thursday

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Manager Doc Prothro will assemble the battery candidates for his Little Rock Travelers, 1937 Southern Association champions here Monday. Infielders and outfielders have been called for Thursday.

Coincidental with the opening of the Traveler training camp the Boston Red Sox will open their "B" training camp at Travelers' field with some rookies present. The Sox have a working agreement with the Pebbles.

Pitchers due to report to Prothro Monday include the veterans Kola Sharpe and Bob Porter, of last year's team, and Southpaw Garland Braxton, recently acquired from Indianapolis. Rookie hurlers invited for the first day include Alpha Brazle, Clarence Lemmer, Joe Walsh, Woodrow Rich and Owen Sheetz. The catchers will be Jim Galvin and Dave Coble.

Infielders Nig Lipscomb and Paul Campbell and Outfielder Billy Nagel already are on hand for training.

The ashes of W. E. Milton Bode, a horse and dog fancier, were buried at his request in an English dog cemetery.

How to Tame a 'Ferocious' Lion

If you ever want to tame a lion like the snarling rascal above, here's how to do it, according to Capt. Ronald Stout of the New York zoo. Just scratch its tummy until its eyes droop dreamily, as in the photo at right, and soon you'll be able to re-enact the touching scene below, in which the wild jungle beast reposes tranquilly in the arms of the slumbering trainer. YOUR FORD DEALER

The Amazing Fellow From Old Kaintuck

By EMERSON PRICE
NEA Service Special Correspondent
FRANKFORT, Ky.—When Albert Benjamin Chandler was graduated from Corydon High School in 1917, he was handed a sheet of paper with a printed legend. Each member of the class had received a similar class prophesy.

Chandler's said simply: "Work hard while you wait, and you'll be governor of your state." He grinned, tucked the paper in his pocket.

He still has it. Yellowed a bit with age, it rests between the pages of an old Bible in his present home—the governor's mansion.

Correct as far as it went, the prophesy may have stopped short of reality for today Chandler is out after the U. S. Senate seat of Alben Barkley, veteran Roosevelt wheel-horse. And if Chandler should be elected to the senate in 1938, who knows what might happen by 1940?

Out-Landons Landon
"Happy" Chandler will run on a record as governor that is in many ways more striking than the one which won Alf Landon a presidential nomination in 1936.

When Chandler became governor two years ago at the age of 37, he had promised to balance the state budget. It hadn't been balanced in 30 years, and with a debt of $28,000,000, not one voter in a thousand really thought it could be.

But at the end of two years Chandler had not only balanced the budget, but had cut the state deficit from $28,000,000 to $10,000,000.

"In two more years the State of Kentucky won't owe one thin dime to anyone," Chandler promises.

The saving was accomplished by abolishing 130 boards and commissions, all spending agencies. Only one agency, the Department of Finance, now is a spending agency. Chandler saved $150,000 a year by cutting down the amount of fire insurance on the state capitol, which is as near fire-proof as a building can be.

Hard Work, Hard Play
Every day in the life of "Happy" Chandler is a miracle of physical endurance and exuberance. He works out in his gymnasium in the basement of the mansion every morning. He is often in his office before 8 o'clock.

He sees hundreds of people, practically anyone who wants to see him. He lunches with legislators, often speaking over a telephone brought to his table during lunch. He attends innumerable dinners and banquets, and still finds time to romp daily with his four children.

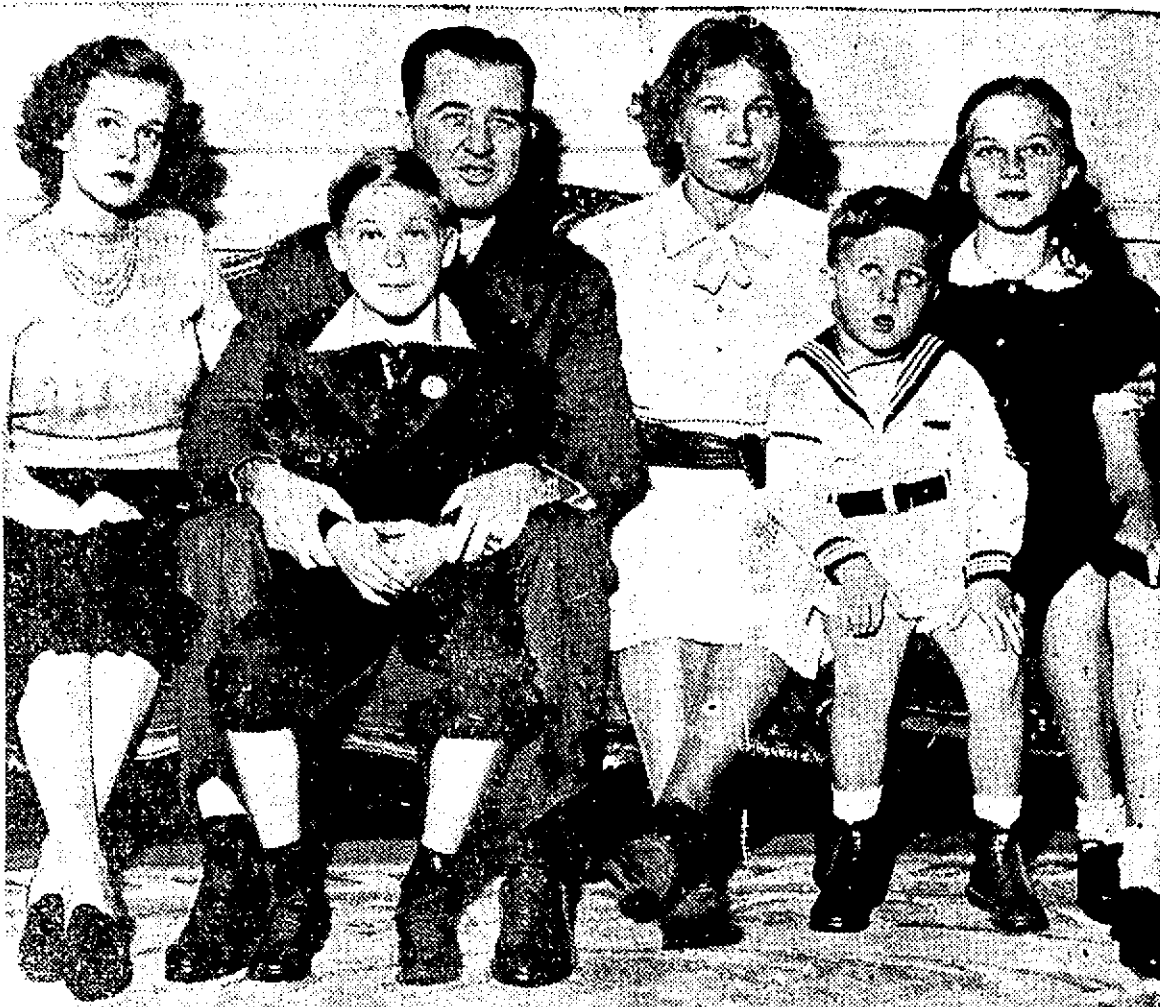

He sleeps little, but soundly, and the lithe figure and movements of a former football player are still his.

He insists he can still beat any other governor in America at golf. He likes to fish, and on infrequent trips to remote parts of the state for fishing, his amazingly wide acquaintance among all sorts of people is revealed.

Chandler doesn't drink or smoke. "I don't know why. I just don't," he says.

Wife Quieted His Singing
But he sings. He sang as the young son of a rural mail carrier in Corydon (population, 600). He sang as he waited on table to work his way through Transylvania College, and won his letter at baseball, basketball and football.

He was still singing when, after experience in the army in 1918 and study at Harvard law school, he coached at-

Despite crowded days, Governor Chandler has plenty of time to romp with the four children of whom he is extremely fond. With Mrs. Chandler, who works closely with him in fitting scores of appointments into each 24 hours, the family is shown in the above group. The governor holds Albert, Jr., and at left is Marcella. On the governor's left are Mrs. Chandler, Joseph Daniel, Mildred.

Nothing like a good shower after a hard day's work. "Happy" Chandler, who once sang songs while campaigning, still likes to sing in the spray.

Informal always, Governor Chandler likes to talk to visitors while sitting outside a chair in what plainly is not a stuffed shirt. His forcefulness and youthful enthusiasm are apparent in every move and gesture.

A half hour's snappy workout precedes almost every executive day at Frankfort. Here the governor gives a bicycle the absent treatment in the gym he had fitted out in the basement of the executive mansion.

order of things at the state capitol. The governor's mansion, a dignified colonial building, had always been as stand-offish as it looked. The Chandlers run it in so easy and informal a manner that all sorts of people go there and feel at home. Five thousand, from every county of the state, filed through to urge Chandler to make the Senate race.

When he is criticized for informality at the mansion and he is not he says simply, "I represent these people. I want to make every effort to find out what they want done. There may be better ways of finding out, but I don't know what they are."

Embarrassing to Washington New Dealers because they owe support to the unspectacular but faithful Barkley, Chandler's candidate brings to the national scene the freshest, broadest, most vital figure to emerge in several years.

With the County Agent
Clifford L. Smith

allotments according to provisions of the 1938 program, he said.

Every effort will be made to speed the work and it should be completed by planting time, he added.

The 1938 cotton acreage allotment for any farm cannot exceed the highest number of acres planted to cotton plus those diverted from cotton in any of the past three years. In any instance where the plan of making individual farms in the county will be made as soon as possible, according to Clifford L. Smith, county agent. It will be necessary to secure work sheets on all farms which were not included in the 1937 agricultural conservation program before allotments can be made. This work is now under way. On its completion, the county committee will compute individual allotments results in giving a farm an allotment exceeding that total, the allotment will be reduced accordingly, and that acreage will be used to adjust allotments on other farms where the percentage allowed is less than the highest acreage planted and diverted from cotton in the past three years, Mr. Smith said. Other adjustments are provided for in order to make an equitable distribution of the county allotment, Mr. Smith said.

The total county allotment is 45,449 acres. The acreage to which the individual allotments will be determined is explained by Mr. Smith. All farms in the county on which cotton is grown will be divided into three groups. (1) Those on which the number of acres planted to cotton plus the number of acres diverted from cotton is less than 5 acres in any of the last three years; (2) those on which this total is more than 5 acres and less than 15 acres; (3) and those on which this total exceeds 15 acres.

The first step in making the allotments will be to allot to each farm in the first group (5 acres or less of planted plus diverted acreage) an acreage amounting to the highest number of acres planted to cotton plus the number diverted from cotton in any of the past three years. That will constitute the 1938 allotment for all farms in this group.

The second step will be to allot 5 acres to all other farms in the county including all those in both the second and third groups. The total allotments made will then be deducted from the total county acreage allotment. Three per cent of the remainder may then be used to adjust allotments to farms in the second group; that is, those on which the planted plus the diverted acreage ranged between 5 and 15 acres. This will complete the allotment for all farms in the second group.

The third step will be allotment of the remaining acreage to those farms in the third group. The total cropland on all these farms will be determined from the work sheets. The percentage of allotment to each farm will be determined by dividing the remaining acreage in the county's allotment by the total cropland, on all these farms. Each farm will then be given an allotment equal to that percentage of cropland on the farm. That is, if the total cropland on the farm is 100 acres, and the percentage to be allotted to each farm is 50 per cent, 50 acres of cotton could be planted on that farm, or if the percent was 75 then 75 acres could be planted. If cotton marketing quotas are adopted in the referendum on March 12, farmers may market all cotton produced on their allotted acres, but a farmer who knowingly over-plants will be penalized. Whether or not the marketing quotas are adopted, farmers must keep within the allotted acreage in order to cooperate in the agricultural conservation program and receive its benefits.

NOTICE TO HEMPSTEAD COUNTY VOTERS

After much solicitation of my friends throughout the county and after due consideration I have definitely decided to make the race for the office of Sheriff and Collector of Hempstead County, subject to the action of the Democratic primary this August.

I will have further statements concerning my platform. This short announcement is to inform all of my friends that I am in the race.

JOHN W. GRIFFIN
